

I request that the FCC not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has improved our time at home by preventing unsolicited telephone intrusions. Indiana's law has been extremely effective, i.e., I used to receive 5 to 10 calls per day, and now I only receive 1 to 2 per month. Instead of pre-empting Indiana's Telephone Privacy law, the FCC should use it as the standard for any proposed national law.
